CIRCULATION BOOKS ALWAYS OPEN.

GIVE US AN HONEST VOTE.

The decision of Judge BARNETT that the polls must close at 4 o'clock is doubtless a correct interpretation of the law. It makes it incumbent on every good citizen to take care that the voting shall be unobstructed in districts where the registration is large.

A person has a right to challenge any voter whom he believes to be not legally entitled to the franchise. But he must have some good ground for such belief. Any person who challenges unnecessarily is an obstructer, guilty of an attempt at fraud, and should be at once removed from the polls and arrested under whatever authority he may claim to be acting.

It is the duty of the police to take care that there is no illegal obstruction at the polling places and to arrest all offenders. To seek to keep a legal vote out of the ballot-box is as great a crime as to attempt to get an illegal vote in.

A CHANCE TO PROVE INNOCENCE.

In 1880 Mr. LEWIS P. MORTON raised an enormous election fund at very brief notice in this city and it was sent out to Indiana to buy the electoral vote of that State for Garfield.

There was but little attempt to conceal the fact of the wholesale corruption before election. After election the Vice-President-elect at a congratulatory dinner boasted of the success which in Indiana had attended the liberal use of "soap."

This year a letter is published purporting to have been written by Col. W. W. DUDLEY, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, urging the repetition of this bribery and corruption and promising the Indiana Republican State Committee ample funds for that purpose.

If the letter is genuine and was really written by Col. DUDLEY, he ought to be in State prison. The stupid boldness with which a criminal act is counselled, makes it incredible that any shrewd politician should have been guilty of an act of such indiscretion. But Col. DUDLEY admits he wrote a letter, although he denies that he wrote the one published. Well, if Col. DUDLEY is innocent, would it not be better for him to publish what he did write instead of seeking to bully the press into silence by threatening libel suits?

Attempts to corrupt the ballot-box ought to be punished, by whatever party they are made.

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE.

The recent fatal railroad accident to the Imperial train on the Caucasus Railway in South Russia, shows that a czar is as liable as a drummer to meet with such disasters when he travels by rail. A number of lives were lost, and the czar and his wife, with other members of the Imperial family, had narrow escapes. The only death in the royal circle was that of a favorite dog, which was in the car with the czar.

The accident has, however, been attended by a result which might be most valuable if it should be accepted as a precedent in this country. The disaster was at first attributed to negligent work, but it proves to have been due to official carelessness, and the Director of the Corporation, Count ALERIKSSON, has in consequence committed suicide.

If his example should be followed in the United States, there might be better protection for public life on our railroad lines.

OUR BURLESQUE VISITORS.

The sixty plump young women who are to appear in burlesque at the Standard Theatre this month arrived from England yesterday. They were not stopped on the dock as imported labor, nor was any tariff levied on them for the protection of our home short-skirted industry. They landed without any trouble, and proceeded to their destinations under the escort of their manager and his assistants, and the admiring glances of the Custom-House officers and dock employees.

These interesting importations are from the popular company of the Gaiety Theatre, in London, where fun and frolic are the order of the day, or rather of the night. They are to be joined by the bright particular star of the Gaiety, the fascinating NELLIE FARREN. Sweet creature! She will doubtless cause a flutter in the hearts of our club men, as she did among the English dukes twenty years ago, notwithstanding the obstruction at that time of a husband and two children.

NEWTON'S POLLY.

It seems that "DICK" CUNNINGHAM is not the only favored contractor to whom $999 contracts or orders are given by the Public Works Department, in violation of the law.

Another pet of the Department is FRED THILMANN, Jr., an ex-Assemblyman and County Democracy leader, to whom is awarded the almost exclusive work of the renewal and repairing of Croton pipes, &amp;c. As in the case of happy Dick, contracts are given to THILMANN in violation of the law, by chipping up the work so as to make the amount come below $1,000.

THILMANN's "pull" seems to be hidden under the little word "Co." In this case the "Co." is none other than the brother of LOWELL SMITH, Gen. NEWTON's "deputy." He is THILMANN's "part." Will Gen. NEWTON explain how these contracts or orders for the benefit of the SMITH family are advantageous to the city?

The loss of five, and probably of seven, lives through the explosion of a rotten boiler at Reading, Pa., may well call attention to the condition of boilers wherever they are used in this city. The inspection of boilers is a duty very commonly neglected, and those who are daily using them forget all about the danger until an explosion occurs.

The plan adopted by the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company of placing girls at the ticket windows instead of men is likely to prove a failure. It takes the men passengers—particularly the old ones—long to find their tickets and take up their tickets that the cars are delayed and the passages blocked in the busy hours of the day.

Miss HENRIETTA MARKERT's free concert for working girls will be continued to-morrow at Clarendon Hall, 115 and 116 East Thirtieth street. This is a far better hall than that on Fifth avenue. The programme for to-morrow is very attractive.

OUR AUTOGRAPH COLLECTION.

WORLDINGS.

Emerson's grave, at Concord, Mass., is marked by a large boulder of pink quartz, which serves for a headstone. No obelisk has ever touched it, and it stands just as it came from its native quarry.

Little Stoops, a little girl living in Monticomb, Pa., died last week from eating too many chestnuts. Shortly after eating them she complained of severe pains about the heart, and before medical aid could reach her she was dead.

Next to Mrs. Marshall Field, of Chicago, Mrs. McLean, of Cincinnati, has probably a finer collection of diamonds than any other lady in the West. Some of the most beautiful of the stones were once owned by Adelaide Neilson, the actress.

Mayor FITZ, of Philadelphia, who is largely interested in manufacturing enterprises, has the burden of the work taken off his shoulders by his two sons, E. H. FITZ, Jr., and W. W. FITZ. Both young men have a wide reputation for business sagacity and soundness of judgment.

Mrs. Mary E. Ryan, whose weekly letters from New York are very popular in the South, is employed as an editor by Monroe the publisher, and receives a handsome salary for her work. She is a typical Southern woman—pretty, dark-eyed and soft-spoken; and in her speech she still preserves the Southern drawl that marks her birthplace.

Infallible Cure for a Cold.

The moment you feel that you have taken cold, of which your nose or your throat will quickly inform you, get a bottle of HODD'S SARSAPARILLA. As soon as you notice a dryness or irritation in the throat (it won't be cold in the head, though it will often feel so), begin taking the SARSAPARILLA, and you guarantee that HODD'S SARSAPARILLA will cure ANY COLD, cold almost everywhere.

THAT MILLION.

A Lot of Interesting Uses to Which Some People Would Put It.

Suggestive Epistle From an Inmate of the Tombs Prison.

We Get Nearly a Page of Letters a Day on this Notable Topic.

It Would Affect Him Badly.

If I had a million dollars I would be in an insane asylum before I spent it. D. H. G. Oct. 30.

Would Say the Public Be—

I would just do as other millionaires do—that is, live in a mansion in Fifth avenue, drive fast horses, deal in railroad stocks, dine and wine, and say: "The public be—!" just like the others. DEMOCRAT M. Oct. 31.

The Girl He Loves Would Be His.

Had I $1,000,000 the girl I love would be mine and that's all I would want. I don't like old maida, because every one of 'em would like to be President of the United States. FREDDIE. Oct. 31.

A Good Sort of Millionaire.

I would give part of my money to the poor, make myself comfortable and all around me; and also take good care of my father and mother when they are old. T. J. SULLIVAN, 227 Calver street, Brooklyn.

He'd Be a Flinger.

If I had one million I would make it one million and a half by betting $1,000,000 to $500,000 that Cleveland will be the next President if I could find any one to take the other side. DICK. 116 East Fifty-sixth street.

Counts His Chickens When Hatched.

If I were a millionaire I would build up some public library and hospital, and would invest the rest of my money in railroad stocks and real estate. But to tell you the truth, I think I could tell you better if I had $1,000,000 cash were in my pocket. MAX ARONSON, 136 Avenue A, New York, Oct. 29.

A Philosopher for Trustees.

Were I to find myself suddenly possessed of a million I should find myself totally unable to use it to my own satisfaction, so I would place it in the hands of trustees and invite all the philosophers to point me out some method wherein I could do an absolute good to the race of men. A. REXER, Second avenue.

Would Work Just the Same.

Were I a millionaire I would seek fresh fields and pastures new, but would go on working just the same—better to wear out than rust out. Meanwhile, like the Irish poet, I would "Scatter blessings round."

And not a tear on aching heart Should in the world be found." ARTHUR FOXWORTH, 148 East Fifty-second street, city.

A Schoolgirl's Vision.

I am a schoolgirl, fourteen years old, and if by some luck I came into the possession of $1,000,000 I would first give a few hundred dollars to Supt. Murray for the benefit of the widow of the late Policeman James Brennan, who met his death in so nobly discharging his duty. With the remainder of my money I would travel through different parts of the world. After satisfying my curiosity I would settle down and devote the rest of my life to charity. KATIE ALTMAN, 337 East Seventieth street, city.

A Fair Day Dream.

Were I the fortunate possessor of a million I would suggest that my father, mother and brother go to Europe. During their absence I would purchase two residences, one in Fort Washington, the other on Fifth avenue, and furnish them both handsomely and tastefully. I would then await anxiously for their return, feeling quite proud of my task.

When once more reunited we would spend the remainder of our days happily, spending our income for both our benefits and that of our less fortunate brethren. OCTAVIE GORMIKEN, Twentieth street and Ninth avenue.

A Royal Welcome Awaiting Dame Fortune.

Every poor man, from the most ignorant to the most intelligent, builds his castles in the air. Some are rudely shaped, some are simple structures, while others are impressive for their greatness. I, like every other poor man, extend my thought to riches, which I may never acquire. But if Dame Fortune should ever knock at my door I would admit her without any hesitation and give her a right royal welcome. If I was the happy possessor of $1,000,000 I would expend some of it on charity, and would buy a yacht. I would join some social club, dress well, and try to treat my less fortunate brother as I would like to be treated myself. ARTHUR P. KIMBALL.

A School-Boy's Paradise.

The minute I should have in my possession the glorious million I would leave school immediately. Then I would buy myself a set of jewelry, make a bee line for the tailor's, and have him make me the best suit that could be produced in the land. I would procure a fine team of horses.

There would not be a theatre I would miss this winter. I would visit the Old World, the South, and all the fashionable resorts. Then, when I had seen 'em, I would get married and have the pleasure of seeing my children enjoy my money. Such is the imagination of a seventeen-year-old school-boy. H. S. S.

An Air Castle in Beggery.

To the Editor of The Evening World: If I had a million dollars in cold, hard rocks, then I'd be a festive roller, you could bet your socks. A street of hard crumb about a million miles long would be the howling echo of my wild, tumultuous song. The gay and wicked Sultan in the harem in Turkey would be a Sunday-school ideal compared with what I'd be. Europe, Asia, Africa, yes, even Hindoostan, would revel in the wake left by the "million-dollar man." Despite the crimson of the swath, I'd leave the barrel hoop. To keep me, the race was run, from landing in the "soup." Yes, if I had a million dollars in cold, hard rocks, then I'd be a festive roller, you could bet your socks. HADLEY B. SMITH, 33 East Tenth street.

Home Views from the Tombs.

To the Editor of The Evening World: I have read with a great deal of interest the theories advanced by the numerous readers of your paper as to how and what they would do if they were millionaires. And allow me to say that I think the wealth of our city (some cases excepted) is misplaced, for evidently the majority of the poor are far more charitably inclined than their million-dollar fellow-men, if they only had the means to put into execution their plans for benevolence. No doubt but our city bears evidence of some noble works of benevolence. But how many acts of genuine charity have we witnessed as coming from the average millionaire without it being set in front of the eyes of the charitable and philanthropic? I would seem almost incredible for me to state here that the unlucky inmates of this institution have never seen or known of charity coming from any of the so-called benevolent and Christian millionaires excepting from one. That one is Mrs. Evans Hartshorn. This really Christian lady devotes her time and money to providing for and assisting in general the worst of the prisoners. She evidently intends to carry her charity further than simply saying she is sorry and letting the matter rest at that. What a noble way she tries to live with a grand and sublime maxim this lady sets forth. Trying to improve and better the condition of those whom some of the aristocratic nobles of our city despise. If the question of how a millionaire should use his money ought to be discussed, we are all glad that Mrs. Evans Hartshorn has the matter in her space and careful attention. ADOLPH PRITCHER, Tombs Prison, Oct. 31.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS AT ODDS.

Mr. Wood Has Resigned and There Is Other Trouble Afoot. Everything is at odds and ends in the Board of Education, and it looks very much as if there was going to be a temporary disintegration of that body. Commissioner Wood's resignation has started the ball rolling, and the rumor that several other members of the Board intend to resign is doing the rest.

It is a well-known fact that the dissensions in the Board, which arose over the removal of the Virginia Mason case and the attempt to make things unpleasant for Supt. Jasper, led to a great deal of bitter feeling and things have been getting worse and worse ever since. As Commissioner Wood was the oldest member of the Board, of which for a long time he was President, his resignation is regarded as a very serious matter. President Simmons and Commissioners Jacob D. Vermilye and William Lummis, who are said to be sympathetic with Commissioner Wood, deny that they intend resigning, though they say affairs in the Board are in a very critical condition.

There seems to be a disposition among the other members of the Board to rush up the scandal. Captured After Escaping Twice. JEREMIAH TO THE EDITOR OF THE EVENING WORLD: ANSONIA, Conn., Nov. 3.—Chief of Police Miner, of Westfield, Mass., captured Frank Burns, of that town, in Southbury last night. Burns is wanted for an attempt to kill his mother-in-law. He was out to pieces three years ago in Westfield. Burns escaped from prison twice.

Among the Workers. James P. Archibald, Master Workman of National District Assembly No. 519, of Painters, Paper Hangers and Interior Decorators, will leave for Indianapolis soon to attend the General Assembly of the Labor Union.

Furniture Machine Work-Workers' Union No. 19 will hold a special meeting to-morrow afternoon at 7 o'clock, at the residence of the organization. The delegates in Kierker &amp; Tiedt's shop, and also to elect a walking delegate. A regular accredited delegate of the Shop and Dress Makers' Union states that H. Moore, whose name appeared in a call for a labor meeting at Webster Hall, is a member of that organization and was not authorized to act for it.

Wise in Time. [From the Franklin Blade.]

Tom—You are laying in an unusually large supply of coal this year, aren't you, Dick?

Dick—Yes; you see I bought one of those patent fuel-burning stoves.

Campaign.

Excitement, combined with the effects of unfavorable weather, or changing season, is a very liable to bring out tired feeling which is often the forerunner of more serious trouble. It indicates that the system is giving way under too much strain, and that something is needed to give tone and strength to the whole organism. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted to serve this purpose. It rouses the torpid kidneys and liver, creates a good appetite, tones the digestive organs, purifies and vitalizes the blood, cures sick headache, and overcomes all the prostrating effects of tired feeling.

For three years I suffered with dyspepsia, growing so bad that I was completely broken down in health. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon gained strength and appetite, and was restored to my former health. J. E. HUGHES, Cedar Hill, Brooklyn, Pa.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any other.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD &amp; CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. 100 DOLARS ONE DOLLAR.

LABOR'S POLITICAL TROUBLES.

Delegates Vehemently Demanded for Campaign Work. The troubles growing out of the action of certain delegates of the Central Labor Union in the political campaign formed the burden of a long discussion in the Building Trades' Section last night.

The ball opened by the Secretary saying that he could not furnish all the minutes of the previous meeting, because Delegate McKim had carried off a resolution requesting the organizations of the Section to join in a demonstration in favor of James J. Cogan. McKim said he had the resolution, but had left it at home.

The Housewives' Union sent in a communication strongly denouncing by name a delegate of the Miscellaneous Section and the Central Union, with "others," for using their positions in organized labor in acting with politicians in a knavish and tricky manner, and thus doing great injury to all trades and labor societies. The housewives wanted the Section to recommend the Central Labor Union to itself of the persons complained of.

A resolution providing that the Section get the views of all the organizations on the subject was finally passed after much wrangling. Chairman Hicks, of the Arbitration Committee, reported that he had received a note from Levi P. Morton saying that he had no knowledge of the employment of non-union men on his Washington residence.

FOR AN HONEST VOTE.

Vigorous Work Against Repeaters—Election Day Arrangements.

Superintendent Murray and Chief Inspector Byrnes held a long consultation with District-Attorney Fellows this morning, and subsequently with United States Marshal McMahon. The question discussed was how most expeditiously to prevent illegal voting and defeat the infamous designs of the gangs of colonizers which were supported by unscrupulous politicians to defeat the will of the people.

The District-Attorney has had about fifty men indicted for illegal registration, and at his request Inspector Byrnes assigned to him five shrewd Central office detectives to work up the evidence, seek out the antecedents of the prisoners, and aid generally in bringing to justice Republican colonizers from West Virginia. United States Marshal McMahon has decided to have his headquarters on Election Day at an up-town hotel, and will be in readiness all day to issue warrants and see that they are executed.

The arrangements are complete for receiving and reading off the returns on election night. The election district returns will be kept. The order of count is: Electoral, State, judicial, Congressional, city and county, legislative and ward tickets. It will be fully 11 o'clock P. M. before returns of certain districts will be secured on the Mayor's contest, while the vote of the city on President should be in by 8 o'clock.

At each precinct station house, returns will be opened and read aloud, and ample arrangements will be made for the reporters of the newspapers and news associations. Chief-Clark Klipp, assisted by Chief-Clark Kipp, and a large corps of experts, will have charge of the figures at Police Headquarters, and THE EVENING WORLD, of course, will be the first to reach the people with the latest and most trustworthy news.

Stenographers Have a New Home.

The Stenographers' Association, lately located at 35 East Nineteenth street, has removed to more spacious quarters at 230 East Thirty-fourth street, near Third avenue, the change being necessitated by the increased membership. F. O. DeLuman, President of the International Association of Stenographers, will shortly deliver a lecture before the Association on "Pencil-Stenography," to which all stenographers are invited.

A Successful Scheme.

[From the Philadelphia Record.] First Actress—So Clara de Stago has gone South to nurse yellow fever sufferers, eh? That woman will do anything to attract attention. Second Actress—But the paper says she has just died there. Now her name will be in every one's mouth for a month.

Juvenile Mischief.

[From the Boston Transcript.] Mother—Johnny, what do you mean by going off with those street boys again. Didn't Bridget tell you that I positively forbade it? Johnny—Yes, mamma, she told me so; but I thought it was only a rookery. A feller can't believe anything he hears just before election.

A Slander Retained.

[From the Chicago Herald.] Some elephants in a car on an Eastern railroad stuck their trunks into the water tank of a locomotive tender on a side track the other day and drank it dry. The elephant has been called a water-drinker, and it is evidently an animal of a prohibition principle.

TRICKS OF DRUGGISTS.

How a Few Druggists Turn the Reputation of Others to Their Own Profit—Remembering, However, Which No Self-Respecting Druggist Would Do.

The remarkable and unprecedented sale of Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic has excited the envious of certain druggists. Seeing the daily enormous demand for this wonderful discovery for the cure of nervous diseases, many stores having literally hundreds of calls daily for this great remedy, some unprincipled druggists have sought by trickery and false representations to turn this great sale to their own pecuniary interest.

Such druggists, when customers call for Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic, make insinuations disparaging to this great remedy. Some even have the audacity to hint that it may contain poisonous drugs. They then extol the virtues of their own nerve remedy, which they have put up to the great intention of fooling upon customers who call for Dr. Green's great discovery. In this way some few druggists are driving a considerable trade, but at the expense of the health of the community, who might otherwise be cured by Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic.

Let the public and sufferers from nervous complaints be not deceived by these dishonest druggists. Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic does not contain any particles of opium, morphine or any injurious drug. On the contrary, it is a purely vegetable and harmless remedy, being made from health-giving and strength restoring plants and herbs. This valuable remedy should therefore be taken in all cases of nervous troubles, for it is an absolutely pure and positive cure, and it may be given to restless infants, nervous children or the most delicate invalids with perfect confidence.

We are pleased to say that the number of druggists who stoop to hint or false statements concerning Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic is very small when compared with the great body of noble-minded druggists who desire, first of all, that the sick and suffering should have the use of the most potent drugs in the treatment of their ailments, and Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic, and then be sure and certainly restored to health. Most druggists recommend this remedy highly, knowing well its wonderful curative powers, and it is only necessary for the public to avoid those stores where false representations are made. When any druggist, therefore, urges you to purchase his own preparation, or some other, upon which he makes more profit, set him down at once as a trickster, and insist on having Dr. Green's Nervous Tonic.

Dr. Green has built up his great reputation as a specialist in the treatment and cure of nervous and chronic diseases by the use of his harmless vegetable medicine. He uses no poisonous drugs in his treatment of the sick, and his success in curing all forms of long-standing complaints is greater than that of any physician of the present day. He gives consultation and advice free of charge, and all who desire can consult him, personally or by letter, at his office, 35 West 14th st., New York.

Subtle.

[From Fitch.]

"Don't call me Mr. Lovell, Miss Malcolm. Call me 'Cornelius'!" "I'll call you Corn 'n'—"

"If what, Ethel?" "If I thought you'd pop." And he popped.
